“The Sender Defender” by Megan Thorn

If only the world didn't have people who send nasty comments on every single thing you post.
Pointing out people's differences and the things they hate the most.

When people send things into the cloud
it feels more like the cloud of doom;
where negativity and criticism are King and Queen
and the feeling of animosity rules the room.

People saying things to each other
that they would never say face to face.
Belittling, condemning and spewing hate
over things like religion, beliefs, and race.

I have a way to make it stop
each and every hour.
I'll rescue people from themselves
using my super power.

As someone sits typing, typing, typing
I stop them before they hit send.
I block their comments before they're delivered because it is my job to defend.

I am The Sender Defender!
I make people stop before they start,
and convince them to remember that all humans have a heart.
