The Best of Iggy
by Annie Barrows
Iggy doesn’t mean to be bad but gets in trouble every day. This mischievous fourth grader hilariously instructs readers on the three main ways trouble happens. Ever heard of extenuating circumstances? (series)

Welcome to Unicorn School
by Pip Bird
It’s Mira’s long-awaited first year at Unicorn School! Though her classmates get paired with glittering, smart, strong, magical unicorns, Mira ends up with a grumpy, potbellied unicorn named Dave. (series)

Funny Girl
Do you like funny? Here’s a collection of funny graphic novels, poems, stories, letters, and more by funny women authors who used to be funny kids.

Once Upon a Tim
by Stuart Gibbs
Tim and Belinda are peasants but have big dreams. When the princess is kidnapped by a Stinx (no, not a sphinx) and the prince puts out a call for gullible knights, Tim and Belinda (disguised as a boy) sign up for adventure.

Why I Was Late for School Again
by Dan Greenburg
Have you ever made up a story about why you were late for school? Well, Danny’s tales are true — he really does get waylaid by zombies, pirates, and even a troll! Now he just has to convince his teacher!

Marcus Makes a Movie
by Kevin Hart
Now that Marcus is taking a filmmaking class, his superhero comic about Toothpick can become an actual movie. However, he will have to depend on his nemesis, Sierra, and other friends for help. (series)

Stand Up, Yumi Chung!
by Jessica Kim Yumi’s parents expect her to study hard plus help in their Korean restaurant. But Yumi loves stand-up comedy, and when she’s mistaken for a no-show student enrolled in a comedy camp, she jumps in — with unexpected results.

Accidental Trouble Magnet
by Zanib Mian
Omar’s family has moved, and he starts a brand-new school. Introducing other kids to his Muslim faith and culture can be challenging, but Omar persists with lots of laughs and imagination. (series)

Stuntboy, in the Meantime by Jason Reynolds
Portico has a lot to worry about (including a bully). With best friend Zola, he copes by creating Stuntboy, a superhero alter ego who secretly protects their neighbors and friends. But can he help his always-arguing parents?

Wayside School Beneath the Cloud of Doom
by Louis Sachar
As fans of this wacky series are well aware, Wayside School is strange, but it gets even stranger when a gloomy cloud gathers over the building and no one knows why. (series)

Leonard (My Life as a Cat)
by Carlie Sorosiak
An alien visiting Earth mistakenly takes the form of a cat instead of a human. Olive saves Leonard from a tree and a friendship begins. The only trouble is, Leonard has no idea how to be a cat or how he’ll get home to his planet.

The Magic Eraser
by Aaron Starmer
The combination to Locker 37 — which provides magical solutions to problems — is handed down to one lucky kid each year. When Carson opens the locker and grabs an eraser, he’s in for a surprise! (series)

Weird Kid
by Greg Van Eekhout
Jake is a shape-shifting alien who fell to earth as a ball of green goo years ago and was found by his parents. As he struggles to keep his human form, he and a new friend notice that a much bigger problem (involving the same goo) threatens their neighborhood.

More Series
• Mac B., Kid Spy by Mac Barnett
• Bad Kitty by Nick Bruel
• Treehouse by Andy Griffiths
• My Weirder School by Dan Gutman
• Babymouse by Jennifer Holm
• Middle School by James Patterson
• Fart Quest by Aaron Reynolds

ppld.org/kids/read